Novel Released about Adventure on Stunning Kauai Beach

Book Explores Underbelly of Society Living Illegally in State Park

Skyler Briggs finds outrageous adventure in the new novel Beyond Na Pali: A Cautionary Tale of Sex, Drugs and Backpacking. Set at remote Kalalau Beach in Na Pali State Park in Kauai, the novel explores drug use, extended travel and quick love. After quitting his job, twenty-something Skyler wants to live an exciting life by going to an exotic, nude beach where people live off the land. He falls in love with a free-wheeling Australian woman who is on a year of travel. She shows him how to have fun, hunt and fish. Their casual drug use leads to big problems when they go too far.

The author Scott G. Kipp adds: “Briggs is a typical worker who wants more out of life than he can find working in a tan cubicle. He quits his job and goes on the first, big journey of his life with a beautiful, blonde Australian. They make love and get high on their dream beach before paradise turns to hell.”

The 205-page book is full of action, drama and romance. This is the first book in the Beyond Series of novels set in the most beautiful places in the world like Kauai, Peru, Nepal and Portugal. The novels document the unexpected twists and turns of Skyler in real, exciting and exotic places. Trouble is always around the corner in these easy to read, fun novels.

Excerpt from book: “I remind myself to take one step at a time. I take the tiniest steps of my life and kick my feet into the trail to make sure I don’t slip. I make slow progress and get farther around the large, curved face of the cliff where it becomes even more exposed and windy. I feel alone and lost and can’t even see Shirley. I get into a trance-like state where I’m totally focused on staying alive and on the trail. One shuffling step after another like I’m walking on a ledge of an eighty-story skyscraper.”

About the Author

Scott G. Kipp wrote the book while working a full time engineering job and finished editing in Peru while researching the next novel in the Beyond Series. Kipp is a veteran traveler who writes novels based in the most beautiful places in the world. Kipp lives in Santa Barbara, California and backpacks all around the world. He is an Eagle Scout and was a backpacking guide at Philmont Scout Ranch before working in multiple national parks. He’s lived overseas as an international student, English teacher and engineer.
